

I Ain't Never Seen A White Man

*Ask a child what's white a child will tell you snow
Ask a child what's black a child will tell you coal
Ask a child what's red a child will tell you fire
Ask a child what's yellow a child will tell you the sun*

I ain't never seen a white man

I ain't never seen a black man

I ain't never seen a red man

I ain't never seen a yellow man

The only man I ever saw looked just like you and me

*Never known a man pure as the driven snow
Never known a man hard as West Virginia coal
Never known a man warm as a winter fire
Never known a man bright as the golden sun*

I ain't never seen a white man

I ain't never seen a black man

I ain't never seen a red man

I ain't never seen a yellow man

*Every man who loses his skin shows his snow white bones
Every man who goes to ash accepts the coal black fate
Every man who lies dead in the mud shows his fire red blood
Every man once in a while turns and runs yellow and scared*

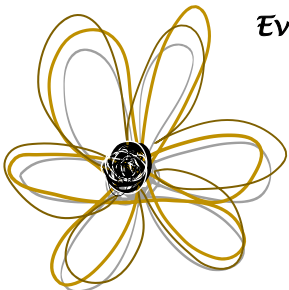

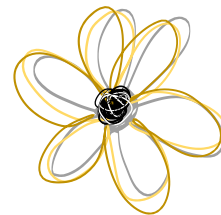

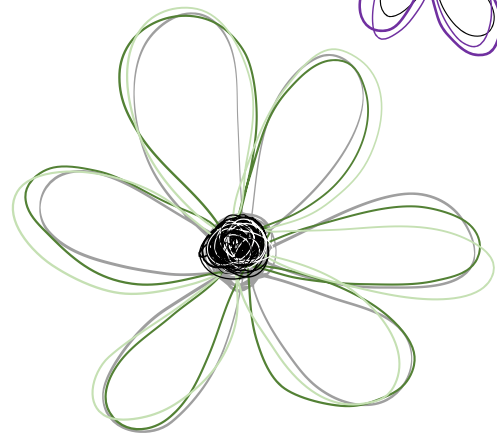

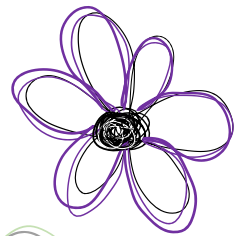

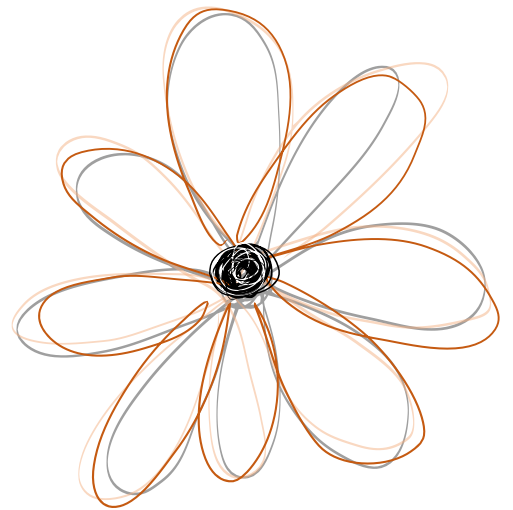

Every man is a white man

Every man is a black man

Every man is a red man

Every man is a yellow man

Every man that's ever been is just like you and me

Poem by Dick Monda